"We are delighted to partner with Complete Women Care to build upon its decades of success and as part of a broader strategy to provide comprehensive women's health care to women across Southern California," says Alistair Madle, CEO of Women's Care Enterprises. "Complete Women Care's dedication to provide high quality, complete and comprehensive solutions for all obstetric and gynecological needs is consistent with Women's Care Enterprises approach to women's health. We welcome Dr. Mackovic and her entire team at Complete Women Care to the Women's Care Enterprises family as we continue our path to transform women's health care for our patients."

Complete Women Care has always been at the forefront of transforming women's health as evidenced by its unique 24/7 gynecological Emergent Care Center which provides a superior, high quality experience for patients and lowers the overall cost of care by reducing unnecessary hospital admissions.

"We are excited about our strategic partnership with Women's Care Enterprises, who we believe is the ideal partner for us as we continue on our path to provide the highest quality, clinically integrated care for our patients," comments Dr. Miriam Mackovic, founder and lead physician of Complete Women Care. "This new partnership gives our Complete Women Care team substantial capital, management talent and resources to expand our services and to provide the best care for our patients."

As part of the transaction, Complete Women Care will be joining Southern California Reproductive Center (SCRC), a leading fertility center in Los Angeles and one of the most highly respected and well-known fertility clinics in the world, as part of Women's Care Enterprises' broader strategy to build a world class comprehensive care model for women in Southern California.
